As a single straw will show the direction of the wind, so a Washington correspondent of the Journal of Commerce shows that a single demagogue may expose the character of his party. For example, conspicnous among those who lately visited the sident from the West to advise him in regard to his duty was an individual of whom the following statements are freely made:-He was born in England, before leaving which he was engaged in the slave trade; and, after the rebellion broke out, he was one of the very first citizens of Missouri who inaugurated a rebel movement against the government. Now, think of such a man as an influential member of an abolition fraternity.

Again, the correspondent says, the Hon. Mr. Blank is a member of Congress, and a man of sterling sense. His father was killed in battle during the Revolution, and he had a brother who rendered good service to his country during the last war with England. He is himself a man of the highest character; and, as a member of the last Congress, he endorsed the conservative sentiments of the President, and voted for the amplest supplies to prosecute the war for the suppression of ion. He is satisfied with the Conon which was defended by Washingon, but by no means with the radical policy of the Administration as now promulgated. He does not think the war has been conducted with proper vigor or with economy, nor that all the officials of the Government are ne ablest and purest men that ever lived; and these heresies he is denounced as an enemy to his country, and designated by a variety of vulgar epithets. Now, ought we not to have a proclamation from the throne of party power declaring the Hon. Mr. Blank to be a man unfit to breathe his native air, and a good subject for the hangman?

On the night of the 23d inst., says the Nashville Union, about seventy-five guerillas made a dash on the railroad, three miles from Bridgeport, for the purpose, it is supposed, of burning a bridge that was guarded by a finding the guards wide awake and prepared to receive them, they moved down the railroad two miles, where they tore up the track for a few rods, and also destroyed a culvert, after which they secreted themselves by the roadside to await the coming of the train, to see it crushed to pieces, together with its passengers. At length the train came, and sure enough, plunged unconsciously into the snare, smashing the engine and two cars; but, fortunately, no lives were lost. A Captain of the Seventieth Indiana and several of his men were wounded by falling from the cars. When the engine ran off the track, the rebels instantly went for it, evidently for the purpose of burning the entire train, but the guards soon rallied, and a brisk skirmish ensued for several minutes, when the guerillas were driven off in great confusion. Several of the guards were wounded and one taken prisoner. The enemy's loss has not been ascertained.

Meantime another train came in sight, but seeing the difficulty into which the preceding one had fallen, it at once backed down to Bridgeport, and informed Col. Coburn (commanding post) of the fray. He immediately detailed fifty men and officers from the Thirtythird Indiana, and despatched them to the scene of action with all possible haste. But ere we could reach there, the guerillas had fled, and could nowhere be found.

The Courier des Etas Unis, which, as has so shamefully misrepresented our country and taken the part of the rebels against our Government, might take a lesson from the late Dr. Bartlett, so long the Editor of the Albion, the organ of the British residents in this couny, and learn proper decorum and dignity. asaid of Dr. Bartlett that in the discussion of questions in which Great Britain was concerned he took the British side, and though we might not agree with him, we could not but commend the courtesy and the moderation of manner with which he bore his part in the controversies that arose. He never indulged in flings and sneers at the country, its inhabitants or its government, nor busied himself in picking up and retailing the gossip of the streets-an abstinence creditable as much to his prudence as his good breeding, since it gave his arguments a chance of making a more favorable impression on American readers. He was once asked how he managed always to maintain so courteous a tone in those controversies. "I always considered myself," he replied, "as the guest of the country. I reflected in what manner, if I were at a gentleman's table, I would discuss any question in which I thought myself bound to differ from him, and I adopted that method in discussing the points of disagreement between Great Britain and the United States." How much better it would be if Mons. Lassalle were actuated by the same commendable urbanity when discussing American affairs in his organ of the Franco-American residents of our country.

Wonderful Escape.—During a skirmish with the guerilla Chalmers, near Wyott, Miss., recently, Major Malone, of the Seventh Kansas, had a very remarkable escape. While riding along the front of the line of our skirmishers, in the darkness, his horse walked into an old well about thirty feet deep, and, with his rider, disappeared instantly. The before now. Major was drawn out by a line of halters tied together, but the poor horse was so badly injured by the fall that he was dead the next morning. Strange to say, the rider only received a few hard bruises, not sufficient to disable him even temporarily from service, and he was soon astride another animal, and at the head of his men.

Rev. John N. Putnam, Professor of Greek in Dartmouth College, and one of the best scholars in his department in the country, died on the steamer Alpha, between Halifax and Boston. He had been long suffering from imption, and sailed from Liverpool in To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: die. and the friends of the Administration admit | section as follows: that his statement renders some further explanation necessary, and at the same time leaves him in a satisfactory position. In justice to the gallant officer we give his two speeches in full. In reply to the address of welcome by Judge Storer, he said:

FELLOW-CITIZENS: I cannot forbear to thank your sympathy, of your respect, and of your regard for my public services. While I ac-cept the expression of your kind feeling as an evidence of your private regard for one of your own fellow-citizens, I cannot forget that your own fellow-crozens, I cannot longer that the great heart of this people does not come up here for a private purpose, nor are the motives those of private friendship. I cannot but recollect the fact that the people of this untry have been carrying on a struggle for their national life against a gigantic revolu-tion, the object of which is to destroy their nation and wipe out their government—a gov lobe. I see that you have been watching with the deepest interest the contest with treason which has imperilled the government. And I that while my heart beats with ment under which we live, and under which we hope to die, I must remember my duty to that government. I must remember, also, that you have some doubt why the Govern-ment sent me here. Let us ever bear in mind, my friends, that it is our duty to yield ready and perfect obedience to our Government at all times, and grant it the privilege of issuing orders for which we must presume it has good reasons until we know the contrary. Therefore I hope there is no disposition among you to question the Government. I do not say to you to stifle your feelings, but to wait for further light. To prevent any misunderstand-ing, I will state here, that since the battle of Chickamauga the President has written me personally to express his satisfaction at what was done.

Some very kind friends, excellent friends of mine, of the cities of New York and Washington, seem to be posted up in regard to my health. The Army of the Cumberland thinks differently—it thinks I am well enough; so I do myself. One of my New York friends has ished to the world that Gens. McCook and Crittenden have conspired against me. Now, I have the assurance from them to-day that they regret the use of their names in any such dishonorable connection. As to the quantity of opium I have taken, you will have to excuse me-I refer you to my drug-

I arrived here one year ago, with orders to report from Cincinnati to the Adjutant-General. I have some orders now in my pocket that I then had. Now, friends and fellow-citizens, I presume the Government does not intend to attack the character of her public s not responsible for these attacks upon me which were made so prominent in some of the public journals of Washington and New York, which were copied into the papers of this city. I presume that our Government would not make such charges. Whatever it does I am willing to have done. I have nothing further to say than this: that if anything gives me hope for the future of our country it is the noble and self-sacrificing spirit manifested by the people, who, in spite of the weariness of war-of the loss of friends and relatives, of children, fathers, and brothers, and all that war entails—are devoted and unyielding. They are still convinced that if there is any hope for this country in the future, it is in the unity and preservation of our government. It is for that I live, and for that I ex-

In the afternoon Gen. Rosecrans was introduced to the merchants at their Chamber by the President of the Exchange, Geo. F. Davis, detachment of the Thirty-third Indiana, but as follows: "Gentlemen of the Chamber of Commerce—Rosecrans," and to this epigra- these fowls have elicited the following rhapmatic presentation the General replied;

Your President is short, but to the point, if there were any point in it.
I don't know what I should say to take up your valuable time, except to thank you and the people of Cincinnati for the cordial reception given me this morning. As I said at the Burnett House, I do not accept the gratifying expression as made to me personally, but as a tribute to the great idea which I represent and the glorious cause which is dear to every parict. I have but endeavored to do my duty o that cause i which you and I are equally nterested. The cause and the Constitution of our Government, State and National, and of our army and people, contrast most strik-ingly with the indifference to order and reckessness to law, on the part of the enemy, that I have been called upon to witness. The peo-ple of the South, whom we have always cred-ited with certain good qualities, seem to have been seriously deprayed by the war. Our ex-perience is that the effects of the rebellion ave been to break up the high-toned character of the Southern people, in respect to honor and truthfulness. I have found them untruthplanter and take his herds of horses and cattle at their value in gold, and pay in their cur-rency. The whole country presents a dull, blighted appearance, and everywhere we be-hold only desolation. They are strongly imsed with the fact that their prosperity ot only gone, but even their business is giving way, drying up. One of their Confederate colonels, in conversation with one of my staff, said, "You are prospering in the war—we are not. Your business is going on as usual. You are making money. But we see no chance f giving up the war—at least we cannot give the organ of French sentiment in New York, And when I see such manifestations of earnestness in the cause, and look on such votes as you lately gave, I feel as if we are not give it up so, either.

Now, I don't know what more I can say, because I don't know that I feel more earnestly than you do in reference to the great interests at stake. But I will say that there is no but to maintain our government exactly as i was-or, if not as it was, the next thing to it; or, if we can't have that, we will have but one

I have been where I could see and hear from the enemy. My hearing what was to hear, and seeing what was to be seen, has given me opportunities for judging of the Southern condition, that all have not possessed. I will tell you one thing more, and that in reference to the opinions of those who think the war might have been avoided, and that some peace might have been recoursed before now if we night have been procured before now, if w had taken a different course. But I tell you that the only way in which we can procure who brought on the war are not fighting it battles. The planters and the people on th border have only acted with reference to the protection of their property. I see that the best blood of the country is being shed in a best blood of the country is being shed in a war that the victims did not bring about."

The people deplore the war, and they are held by the neck; the military power has got them under its heel. You cannot, therefore, make peace with them. The only way is to keep tightening the cords around them, to get them so broken that the conservative people of the South can help themselves. This ple of the South can help themselves. This they will not attempt until we throttle the military power. Then they will turn to the leaders and say: "We have had enough of this and will give it up." Accordingly, I see no hope except in prudently and steadily crowding upon them as we have been doing and the termination of the struggle at la will be in accordance with the great interes of our country and the world. I had hope within a year we could have accomplished the reduction of the rebellion. I will say in conusion, that, had we received the forces eight weeks ago that we ought to have had, we would have broken the back of the rebellion

The Boston Post says, in good taste and judgment:

We are sorry to see an attempt made to injure the character of General Rosecrans, be-cause he has been relieved from duty in the field. He has fought well, rendered good ser-vice to his country, and merits its gratitude. The President may have had justifiable reasons for calling him from Tennessee, and yet leave his reputation as a citizen and a sol-dier unscathed. Yet the poor, subservient tools of power imagine they present grateful incense in their atempt to sacrifice a man whose worth is a far beyond their compre hension as the stas are above the earth.

> During the six weeks just past, much has been done by our vigilant and energetic post commander to advance the reign of law and rule of order in this military district. Three well-planned and successful expeditions have heen made, in which several very danger men were captured, and several plundering bands almost broken up.

On the 17th ult., Captain Ford, of the 39th, with 125 men, was ordered to cross the Cumberland Mountains, to the right of Pound Gap; Captain Welsh, with 50 men, to occupy Beaver Creek, and Lieut. Coleman, with ty, Virginia. One hundred men were de spatched to Magoffin county, to be in suppor ing distance in case of necessity. These for and distance in case of necessity. These force made their points, killed fifteen rebels in skir mishing, lost one Lieutenant—Walter Thorn bing—who was bushwhacked from a hillside and had one slightly wounded. They cap ured a number of prisoners, taking so man of Captain Rice's men that his command was broken up. These men now desire to enlist in the Union army, and say that they can recruit a full company for the 45th Kentucky in their neighborhood, which has been entirely rebel in the past.

Captain Ford has gone into camp at Pike-ton. He is reinforced, is scouting as far as Pound Gap, and capturing prisoners daily.

On the night of the 20th, a band of Federal and rebel deserters made their way into Ash land, and robbed the bank of $1,500. Colone Gallup sent a Lieutenant, with twenty men, in pursuit. Colonel True, of Grayson, despatched a squad of his men to follow the thieves. Three of them were taken.

On the 26th Lieutenant-Colonel Brown, of the 14th, left camp, at the head of two hundred men, to scout the mountains in the vicinity of Crocker's Neck. The country in this region is very rugged, being almost wholly overspread with high rough hills, wild and hidden ravines, excellen lurking places from which the enemy on some steep bluff bushwhack our men, and are ou of the way long before we can reach the emi nence. Scouting here is both difficult and dangerous. The citizens are very nearly all of them rebels, so that Uncle Sam's boys can get very little aid or comfort from them, and their information is more frequently intended to lead us into snares than otherwise. But country farmer at his morning coffee, is also discreet and wary. He took guides from a distance who knew the hills and hollows; pressed all the citizens he met into his column to prevent their circulating news of his com ing, and captured forty prisoners and a number of horses. Capt. Green, with his mounted infantry, proved himself efficient on this scout. Capt. Patrick caught four of Jackson's men and killed a fifth (Green Sexton), who have been pillaging and plundering indiscriminately from West Liberty to Crocker's Neck the Captain also distinguished himself by confiscating a live Guinea. As the frightener fugitive flew over his head, he bravely reached forth his arm, caught the fowl by the leg, thrust him head foremost into his haver sack, where the prisoner condoled his condirach-h-e!" The Captain stoutlyy affirms that he intends to compensate the owner for his loss; but, alas! how uncertain are future

VICKSBURG, Oct. 25. Gen. McPherson's command has just returned from a reconnoissance in force. They left Wednesday, October 14th, and have travelled over 120 miles, and destroyed all the mills that supplied guerillas with food between this place and Canton and Jackson. These three points form nearly a triangle. On the 14th he en-camped on Big Black; on the 15th he was in ivouac at Brownsville, driving the rebel

About National Banks and Revenue.

The town is like all small towns in the latitude, meagre and desolate. Two small churches and groceries, and a few dwellings, more like grave yards than a dwelling place for the living, compose the village. Early on the morning of the 16th Col. Coulbaugh, of Gen. McPherson's staff, and Col. Winton, commanding, the cavalry were sent in vance to reconnoitre. It was found that the enemy were in considerable force. Heavy skirmishing was practised and Logan sent in detour to their rear before this could be ac-complished. The enemy fled.

A few miles beyond Brownsville the roads are towards Canton. There our forces divided, giving the rebels the opinion that we were in great numbers, as it was afterwards ascerained by an intercepted despatch from Can-on to Bragg, stating that the enemy were adancing in heavy force in three columns, one marching on Canton, and asking for rein-forcement immediately. On Friday, at Adams', they made show of resistance on a splendidly woods, with a field in front and another wood a half mile away. There were some ten pieces of artillery engaged in the duel until

Our loss was one man, who was singularly killed, a cannon ball carried of the head of the horse and rider. A few slight wounds were received by three others that evening. We captured a lieutenant and twelve men of a Texas regiment. The negroes were in-etrumental in the capture, as they gave us We went near enough to Canton to accomplish the object of the expedition, viz: the destruction of the mills and shops for manacturing wagons, and then returned with some thirty prisoners, an important rebel mail, and all their cattle. The reads were excellent and well supplied with water, and there was no straggling except in the case of two men who had their threats cut when

We found two small churches and a well at the seminary, but the most utter destitution except a supply of sweet potatoes and fresh meat. On our way out we lived on the best, through a country yet undisturbed. On the home stretch we found nothing. General Mower had charge of Tuttle's division.

General Mower wanted to go further, but the object of the raid was accomplished in the alarm that preceded vs. We returned from near Canton and reached here last night. Major Osband has just returned from an exection up the left bank of the Yazoo, where had been recruiting for colored cavalry soldiers.

He left Vicksburg with 130 men of the 1st Mississippi cavalry and 4th Illinois. The rebel spies preceded him into the country and gave information of his number. One hundred and fifty rebels attacked him after his command had been divided into two battalions. Forty of the 1st Mississippi (colored) and 4th Illi-nois repelled the rebels, capturing sixteen of as crest-fallen heroes as ever formed a head. The rebels had several wounded. Our casualties were nothing, except one man wounded

The party entered the town with their captive rebels clad in uniform and mounted on mules and horses, without bridles or saddles, and many of them with long hair and no hats. It was a novel sight indeed. The jail is the resort of secesh looking for their friends and

[To the Associated Press.] CHATTANOOGA, October 24 Via Washington, October 28. The enemy's actions seem to indicate that Bragg is moving in large force upon Cleveland, Tenn., with an evident purpose of breaking through our lines in that direction. It is generally believed here that this movement is co-operated in by a portion of Lee's forces from Virginia, moving down by way of Lynchburg and Bristol, Va, with the intention of driving Burnside from East Tennessee, and turning the flank of this army and thus compelling its retirement from Chat-[To the Associated Press.]

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29. The Gazette's Chattanooga despatch of the 27th says that a detachment under Col. Stanley, of the 18th Ohio, floated twenty pontoons down the river in the face of the rebel sharpshooters, landed them at Brown's ferry, and sarprised and drove the rebels from the ridge on the south side, opening communication with Bridgeport. The rebels are flanked, and must evacuate Lookout Mountain.

A second despatch says that Gen. Hazen, with 2,000 men of Gen. Palmer's division, attacked the enemy on Lookout Mountain and drove them from their position. Gen. GLASGOW, KY., Oct. 27, 1863. Some time has elapsed since I penned any-hing for your much esteemed paper, but the occasion of my negligence has been the lack of time, rather than of items of interest, hough just at present am in rather a poor quarter for new and startling intelligence. Of the raids of Hamilton, Hughes, and Richrdsos, you are fully advised, but as many our readers may be somewhat inclined ests for allowing these raids, pemit us, a tioned somewhat on the outskirts of the inform you that it is not the fault of con nanding officers in these parts that these abiquitous robbers elude them. The mounted forces under the command of Brig. Gen. Hobson, commanding District of Southern Central Kentucky, are all new, most of them but par-tially equipped and armed, and not fully or-ganized. Infantry is of but little use against flying bands, for they much resemble that int so much complained of by Paddy. Wil o-the-wisp-like they dance over the country here to-night and miles away by sunrise, a ways taking care to avoid the vicinity of all troops, and, by the aid of friendly citizens, fully advised as to the movements of all pursuing parties. None but well mounted troops need attempt to follow them, and then they should be in sufficient numbers to completely sur round and to occupy every way of egress. Since it was reported that these guerillas were again on the move, Gen. Hobson has strained every nerve to outwit and capture or at least have a brush with them. All his dissable force has been on the move cons nd had any of the carping critics, far awa from the scene of action, heard the continue clicking of the wire at this point, orderin men hither and thither, he would have bee fully satisfied with the efficiency of the officers in command. The General has been ably seconded by all under his command. Colone Strickland, of the 50th Regiment O. V. I commanding this post, appears to have used every endeavor to carry out the plans of the General, but it has been an up-hill work, for when the raid commenced only one hundred and fifty horses could be raised in and about and fifty horses could be raised in and about Glasgow to send in pursuit, and most of them were in bad condition.

But the prospect for the future looks brighter. On Saturday, Capt. Letcher, A. C. M., visited this town and mustered in seven full companies of the 37th Kentucky volunteer mounted infantry, and now, as soon as horses are furnished and proper types reported them. are furnished and proper arms provided, the will be ready to take the field. The men of this regiment had become very much disheartened at the length of time before being mustered and paid, and Capt. Letcher's appearance was hailed with cheers, which were repeated over and over again as each company was mustered in, Capt. Letcher, by his uni-form, firm, and gentlemanly bearing and his wident desire to serve his country faithfully naving obtained the good will of both officer nd men. On Saturday afternoon, when all rawn up in line and unanimously elected B. J. Before we came here we were led to anticipate a sejourn in a community where friendly faces would be scarce, where we must look with suspicion on all around, and discover in every pretty maiden a rebel emissary, but, on the contrary, we have found many who exthe contrary, we have found many who extend a hearty welcome to the "bonnie bluecoats," and who express their joy at the reocupation of the town by a Federal force. We have heard many ask, "Can any loyal men be found in Glasgow?" and we can only say, "Come and see," and if you soon desire to leave, we shall be forced to tell you that you cannot express a loyalty when you meet it. cannot appreciate loyalty when you meet it.

FRIDAY, OUT. 30, 1863.

We call the public attention to General pur efficient and popular Adjutant General. General Boyle, in his conduct of the military high hopes of his friends. He displays a vigor and judgment worthy of all praise.

TENNESSEE-THE POLITICAL SITUATION.-The work of restoring Tennessee to her constitutional relations in the Union appears to be at than forward. Unquestionably one of the course which the so-called Military Governor tion, this fact is manifest.

Bryant spoke as follows: furtherance of the efforts of the people of Tennessee to resume their constitutional relations in the Union. With the polity of the State, under the single condition imposed by the constitution of the Republic, he as a national officer had nothing to do. His simple task was to protect and second the people in reorganizing their local government as it was under their loby the nature and end of his office but as retask, and had applied himself to the performance of it with disinterested and statesmanlike energy, there is little room for doubt that the task would have been performed ere this, and that Tennessee would now be in her place as not confined himself to this task. He has departed from it. He not only has departed from it but has undertaken a separate task which is repugnant to his proper work and with which he as an officer of the General Government has no lawful concern. He has mixed up the question of a change of the constitution of the State in a most grave and vexed particular with the simple question of a reorganization of the government under a reorganization of the government under the constitution. He has called upon the was for gradual emancipation; but emancipapeople of Tennessee not merely to resume their constitutional relations in the Union but forthwith to abolish slavery. Nay, he has t rown the whole weight of his power and influence as a national officer in favor of the abolition of slavery in Tennessee before the reorganization of the government or simultaneously with it. He has used his office not to restore Tennessee to her place in the Union so much as to enthrone abolitionism as the in pensioning an abolition organ or hand- themselves. organ at the Capital, and in practically mak- And here are declarations from the pensioned | HATS! ing abolitionism the standard of loyalty in organ of General Johnson which throw a yet

Instead of really seconding such efforts, he has ism. He in his official character has done nearly everything he could do to fulfil the moment of frenzy drove Tennessee into rebellion. The chief if not the exclusive mode by which he as the representative of the Union the influence of moral sussion or the most convincing logic of statesmanship. has sought to promote the re-establishment of the Union in Tennessee is virtually the offer of tyranny in return for allegiance. In fine, General Andrew Johnson, speaking in the name of the Federal Government, has said in effect to the people of Tennessee: "You must consent to abolish slavery, if you would be permitted to reorganize your local government and resume your place as a State of the Union." Such in effect is now the language of his position and of his conduct. Nay, his position and his conduct now announce this condition more directly and unmistakably than ever before. Without formally asserting the theory of Sumner and Whiting and Butler, he is vigorously carrying it out in practice. No wonder the cause of restoration in Tennessee appears to be at a stand-still or to be going backward rather than forward. The wonder would arise if the cause should make headway under such unfriendly auspices. In truth, the wonder actually is that the cause is not far less advanced than it is. What motive has prompted General Johnson to pursue this unwarrantable and unpatri- To the slave aristocracy the day of inquiry otic course we know not. It can hardly be a deliberate conviction that slavery is "a cancer on our society" and ry is "a cancer on our society" and the cause of our domestic dissensions and this bloody civil war," though so he is gry waves of revolution, this aristocracy asnew accustomed to describe the institution, for until very recently he as a champion of slavery disputed the palm with the greatest fire-eater of them all, having even proposed in the first stage of the rebellion that the Union should be peaceably dissolved if the North should refuse such additional guarantees for the protection of slavery as the South might unite in demanding. As late indeed as the beginning of his services as Military Governor of Tennessee, he in his popular speeches habitually coupled the abolitionists with the secessionists, and denounced both alike. We, therefore, put aside the hypothesis in question, as quite too improbable to be taken into the account. It is conjectured very widely that Gen. Johnson has struck a bargain more or less informal with the abolition leaders of the North, according to which he is to receive the abolition nomination for the Presidency next year in consideration of his either restoring Tennessee to her place in the Union as a free State or not restoring her at all, and that his official course in Tennessee is simply the expression of a very conscientious determination to perform his part of the bargain. We know not how this may be, but certainly his official course in Tennessee would not be different in any essential particular if the conjecture were true. Yet it would be more believe, to ascribe his official course mainly to an arbitrary and vindictive temper, aggravated by the possession of virtually despotic power over a population that notoriously regards him with neither love nor respect. Be his motive what it may, however, his official course itself, with its pernicious consequences, is altogether incontestable. And this is the point which concerns the country most. This point deeply concerns the whole country. Is

Human nature is as eager to retain visions of oppression and of insult which in a as to acquire, and neither misers nor monarchs

Force, physical force, either actual or apprehended, is the only weapon by which an aristocracy can be put down. Men who are pampered and puffed up by a long enjoyment of peculiar power and privileges must have them wrenched forcibly from their hands, for power and privilege invariably tend to blunt the sensibilities and blind the mind of their the sensibilities and blind the mind of their

The slaveholders, though not more than one-thirtieth of the population, really constitute the State, which is detion, really constitute the State, which is designated as a slave State, just as if there was no other species of property within our borders deserving consideration.

The slaveholders of Tennessee are just as good, and as generous, by nature, as other men, but they will never relinquish their hold on slavery, while it is profitable, until they are forced to do so. and discussion never comes; with it the vote is always either too early or too late. Today, in Tennessee, while the State is consures us that the public mind is too much excited to discuss emancipation, and that the subject must be postponed until peace is re-established. But nothing is more certain than that when peace shall prevail this aristocrature. cy will warn us that it will never do to re-open the agitation of the slavery question. The great work of emancipation, great in its effects upon this generation, and inconceivably great in its benign influence upon pos terity, must be perfected now, while the genius of Freedom walks through the land, clad in her panoply of steel, or the oppression of slave aristocracy will weigh upon us more heavily than ever. We hold a position now which we must not surrender to the enemy This is a very fair exhibition of the spirit and method of the radicals in Tennessee and everywhere else in the Union. Both the spirit and the method are well illustrated in the sentiment of the Bravo in Farguhar's play of THE INCONSTANT. "Shall we despatch him?" asks one Bravo, as Young Mirabel hands Lamorce into the next room. "Ay, ay," exclaims his companion, "dead men tell no tales; I ha'nt the confidence to look a man in the face after I have done him an injury; there- | Photograph & Ambretype Apparatus, fore, WE'LL MURDER HIM." In the exclamation of this ruffian may be found the whole philosophy and the whole religion of radicalism as now developed in this country. We certainly have too good an opinion of the morality and enlightenment of the loyal charitable, and more correct as we would fain people of the Union to believe that radicalism will ever be allowed to consummate its atrocious schemes. But it cannot be checked and blasted too early. Though still comparatively in its embryo, it is clearly pregnant with destruction to the best hopes of the Republic. We warn the people to crush it in season. As Antony declares of the whispered conspira-

Philadelphia, DYSPEPSIA

Positively cured by the Great American Dyspepsia tion of other diseases, some of which are of the most fatal character. Dyspepsia is emphatically the disease that takes from us the bracing stimution ambition and hope, emasculates and unfits us for the enterprise of life. We say to the sick and to physicians of every school that in Dr. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial there is a cure for the worst cases of dyspepsia.

Dr. Wishart has treated, in the past two years, (9,390) nine thou-and three hundred and ninety patients for Dyspepsia, in its various forms, and in every case where the medicine was taken as directed, it made a perfect cure. A number of the above cases had been treated by the most eminent physicians in this country and Europe.

The want of fuel ill prevent many a poor laundress from taking in her accustomed washing, and there are women who have earned their living by going out to day's work, who will be compelled to forego their engagements if they have young children, for they cannot leave them at home to freeze to death. We know it is but necessary to state the exigency of action to induce our citizens to enter zealously upon this good work. If there is a scarcity of hands to chop this wood, let a parcel of our hardy young men, like Ali Baba and Ganem in the Forty Thieves, go out into the forests, axe over shoulders, and panniers on the backs of mules, to bring in faggots, and perhaps they will discover some robbers' cave with untold mines of wealth concealed. IMPORTANT JUDICIAL DECISION.—In the Circuit Court of the United States on Monday ast, Judge Grier delivered a decision under the habeas corpus act of March 3d, 1863. The fifth section or that act provides that if any suits hall be commenced against any officer, will or military for any arrest or any wrong sixtyl or military for any arrest or any wrong arrest or any wrong the section of the sec ivil or military, for any arrest or any wrong one under color of authority from the Pres-dent, the defendant in such suit may remove to the Circuit Court of the United States.

Twas under this act that the suit brought General George W. Jones, ex-Senator from Town, and ex-Minister of the United States to Central America, against Secretary Seward, for damages, resulting from the imprisonment of the former in Fort Lafayette, was sought to be removed from the Supreme Court of New York into the Circuit Court for that district. Judge Clerke, however, before whom the application for removal was made, refused to certify the record to the United States Court, and there the subject rested until Judge Grier delivered his order in the case of Hodg-

on against Marshal Willward.

In this latter case the record was regularly certified into the United States Court under the act referred to, and the order of Judge Grier was upon a motion to remit the record orner was upon a motion to remit the record to the State Court on the allegation that the case was not within the provisions of the act. But Judge Grier denied the motion, deciding that the case was properly certified into the Circuit Court, and that it must be tried there the same way as if brought there on apeal, or as if it had been brought into that ourt on original process. Judge Grier's pinion is appended: Circuit Court United States, Eastern District of Pennsylvania. William H. Hodgson vs. William Millward et al. This case has been removed into this Court under the provisions of the fifth section of the act of 3d March, 1863 (12 Stat. at Large, 756).

It is now moved to remit the record, on the allegation that the case is not within the pro-visions of that act. Although the certificate of the Judge who ordered the removal of the case may not be conclusive on this court, if we should be of opinion that we cannot entertain jurisdiction of the parties or of the cause, yet it lies on the party who alleges that fact to make it clearly appear that we see no reason to doubt the correctness of the decision of the learned Judge who has certified his case, and fully concur in the opinion de-It would be superfluous to repeat the arguments so well stated by that learned Judge. It is clear that the defence of the defendants (if they have any) depends wholly on the construction of the Constitution of the United States and of the acts of Congress. The courts of the United States have, therefore, jurisdiction of the subject matter without regard to the citizenship of the parties.

The act of Congress already mentioned

the citizenship of the parties:

The act of Congress already mentioned, which authorizes the removal of such cases to this court, is not alleged to be unconstitutional, nor that the party has not pursued the mode pointed out by the act in a case where there has not been a final judgment, and which, of course, was still "pending" in that court.

The objection that the record shows that the The objection that the record shows that the trespass with which the defendants are charged was not committed by virtue of any order of the President, or under his authority, or under color of any act of Congress, cannot now be urged, as it constitutes the very question to be tried and determined by the court when the case shall be heard before a jury. Assuming the allegation to be true that the President may have had authority conferred on him to issue such order, and that the order issued by the United States Attorney was irregular or he United States Attorney was irregular the United States Attorney was irregular or void, yet these are the very questions which the defendants have a privilege, conferred by the statute, of a trial and decision, in the courts of the United States.

The order or warrant under which the defendants justify purported to have been issued by virtue of authority derived from the President. This was "color" of authority, whether the substance existed or not. The argument that the substance existed or not. The argument that he substance existed or not. The argument that substance, may be metaphysically correct, but has too much subtility for practical application in the construction of statutes. We do not think it processors to substance. ion in the construction of statutes. We do not think it necessary to give a definition of 'color of authority' to suit all cases. For the purposes of this case, it is enough to say that an officer acting in good faith under a warrant purporting to come from his superior, whom he is bound to okey, as acting under "color of authority," whether his superior transgresses his power, or the warrant be irregular, or not. This is the question to be tried under proper

If the State Court should assume to refuse to certify the case into this court because, in their opinion, the superior officer had not authorities and it is expected that the cars will be to certify the case into this court because, in their opinion, the superior officer had not authority or the warrant was irregular and void, they would deny to the party the privilege conferred on him by the act, and treat its provisions with contempt.

This case was, therefore, properly certified into this court, and must be tried in the same manner as if brought here by appeal, or "as if it had been brought in said court by original process." Motion denied.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. A Chattanooga letter to the Herald says: Deserters continue to come into our lines, notwithstanding the extraordinary measures COMMENCING NOVEMBER 5, 1863. taken by Bragg to prevent them. Nine men, came in yesterday. The officer, who is intelligent and apparently honest, tells a tale which is cheering and inspiring to all good Union men, and which corroborates previous formation. He says a full brigade of Tenesseeans, with their General at their head, ttempted to come through to our lines in a ody one day last week, and that a division of staunch rebels was called out to prevent them. A fight of the most sanguinary character ensued, in which artillery, musketry, and bayo-nets were used for three or four hours, resulting n the overpowering of the discontented Ten-esseeans after some eight hundred men on ooth sides had been slaughtered. The sound of the cannon was distinctly heard in our lines at the time, but nobody could explain the phenomenon of the brish fire so close to the enemy's rear. The officer ay the matter was hushed, and has since been kept so quiet that the extremes of Bragg's army know nothing definite about it. Bragg's distrust of his Tennessee and Georgia troops is perhaps an explanation of his delay in atacking this place.

Major-General Gordon Granger takes command of the 4th corps to-day. Thomas and Granger, who are now universally acknowlge the saviors of the army, are to each have plendid corps, three divisions in each, with e commanders at their head. The brigades will probably be composed of nine regiments each. In fact, the whole machinery of the army, when reorganized, will be less compli-cated and more effective. The health of the army, notwithstanding the labor and anxiety it has experienced, is very good. A large field hospital is established in a lovely valley, two miles from the town, north of the river, and the sick receive the best of care and food. WASHINGTON Oct 29 Gen. Meade has, within a day, made some changes in the position of his forces, looking to the better protection of those engaged in morning, the rebels made a demonstration sgainst the 6th army corps, but nothing further was accomplished than driving in our pickets a short distance, when the rebels retreated.

Deposits for 5-20 bonds on Monday next, November 2d, will, it is ascertained at the Treasury Department, entitle depositors to bonds, with full coupons, from the first of November. In the recent announcement of quotas to the several States under President Lincoln's proclamation of Oct. 17th, calling out an ad-litional 300,000 men, the deficiencies of the States under former calls and under the recent draft are taken account of only in reference to a subsequent draft, in case another is rendered necessary by failure to furnish the full quota of volunteers. It is presumed there will be no draft in those States which raise their quota of the 300,000 volunteers, but, in States where, through failure to raise their quota, the draft has to be resorted to, all seficiencies at the time existing in such State will be taken into account. Drafted men and substitutes are entered only to the $100 bounty provided by law, and not to the increased bounty of $300 offered to volunteer

Governor Andrews has issued an order assigning the quotas of the several cities and towns, under the President's last call for troops, and designating new regiments to be raised. The bounties offered for regiments are $302, in addition to a State bounty of $50 for new recruits, and $402 and a State bounty of $50 for veterans. The Government called on the whole people to unite with fresh and fervid devotion to a cause sacred as all our hopes, and secure to the national armies a reinforce-ment which will render them invincible and Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet know of ne sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I de this more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Roberts Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prein-Plain and figured French Merino; Plain French Velours; of the femoval of this prejulike by proper tests, and for emovaragement to try
lebility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by yvident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.
